“ Embrace the way your child is blooming .. even if it is not the garden you imagined..” - unknown

15 years ago Kayla Lynn Sibó entered this world with a purpose. She made a young couple first time parents. Little did they know that their life would forever be changed by this sweet girl. Things never happened the way they were suppose to. Kayla broke the mold for sure. So many hospitals and doctors over the years. Every where they turned doctors could never figure Kayla out, she was truly a medical mystery.

Through all the pain over the years she still had a smile. She taught everyone around her lessons every single day to keep moving forward and it will all be ok. The true definition of strength. She may not have been verbal but Kayla could say it all with her eyes.

She may have been the oldest sister but she had two little brothers that eventually grew to be bigger than her. Kayla taught them how to love, how to care, how to live life to the fullest. And for that they will forever be grateful for her.

Her parents main goal was for Kayla to live life fully and not just live behind the disabilities. She would go to the barn for chores, ride on the four wheelers, attend all her brothers sports games she possible could, and the biggest thing was to go to school like a typical child her age. This last year she finished 9th grade at Valparaiso High School and her parents couldn't be more proud. This also couldn't have been possible without the help of her amazing Nurses that attended school with Kayla over the last 6 years, Mary Rogers and Janice Reynolds.

On the 27th she celebrated her 15th birthday and was able to have one more day surrounded by family while she was alert. After that her birthday party Kayla slipped into a deep sleep and her family surrounded her for the next few days. The morning of July 30th mom and dad laid next to Kayla in her bed as she slowly and peacefully slipped away to heaven.

For the first time in 15 years she is pain free and running the streets of heaven above. This broken shell was left behind for whole new life in internal glory.

Rest peacefully sweet child of mine ♥ Your mom and dad and brothers love you so very much ♥

“ Mine memories I will always have is about you amber and devin and the boys. Watching through facebook for many years has shown me how absolute closeness a family can be. How gram showed you everything she knew before she passed. With Devon by her side till the end still is in my.mind. how the boys went and stayed by her side every doctors appt. How hard you fought for her to go to school and the cutest outfits you always put kayla in and the glasses, oh my goodness, the cutest and most fashionable. My admiration for nurse mary to go through all her illness just to come back and finish being there for kayla. And you Amber for being the best mother alittle girl could ever have. The pics you always posted have kept us in check how important family can be. God will and has always blessed your family for sure. Love to you all

“ I remember seeing Kayla for the first time when she was just a little peanut. You could tell from the start that she was going to be a fighter (she had it in her genes). As the years went by, everyone who knew your family, and especially Kayla, knew that she was indeed a fighter. One of the strongest children I have ever had the pleasure to meet. It would crack me up when you would show us how much she hated having her picture taken, and her personality was unlike any other. She was meant to be with you, Devin, and the boys. As you navigate this very new, and difficult normal, just know that there are so many thoughts and prayers being sent up for you all. God shared a special angel with everyone here on earth.
